Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50c. size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N.Y.

The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.

With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

THE FIREFLIES' WEDDING

By Catulle Mendes....

One evening as I was returning from the village fete I noticed in the light of a moonbeam a child sleeping against a tree in the roadway alongside of a miniature cathedral in plaster. I have often wondered who buys these hideous productions of ecclesiastical architecture, with such square, ungraceful outlines, surmounted by a tall steeple and illuminated with a candle end placed on the altar. A sensation of pity seized me when I gazed upon the poor little merchant, who must have spent the entire evening trying to sell his church, and, finding no purchaser, had fallen asleep to dream, perhaps, of the beating which awaited him at home.

Ragged, dusty and tanned, he was as picturesque as he was dirty. I awakened the lad, gave him some money and, to avoid the semblance of almsgiving, I accepted the plaster cathedral.

It bothered me a good deal as I carried it off under my arm. I walked faster, being anxious to relieve myself of the burden, which I intended to leave in a corner of the garden where it would serve as a scarecrow for the sparrows which were already beginning to steal my cherries.

I must have looked like one of those personages you see in religious paintings bearing the resemblance in miniature of the chapel which they have dedicated to St. Timoleon or St. Ildevert in expiation of their sins.

Midnight sounded; I was still awake in my bed, with eyes half closed. But it was an insomnia without fever, vague and delicious, refreshed by the soft moonlight entering through the wide open window close by, which also bathed the winding paths of the garden below, the beds of flowers and the velvet grass in the pale enchantment of fairyland.

Perfectly happy in my semiconscious state, without the sensation of existence, yet enraptured with the joy of living, I was rather a thing ecstatic than a man. And the vast silence, the absolute calm, so suggestive of solitary wastes, drowsy nooks, of leaves unstirred by any breeze, were deepened by the almost arrested throbbings of my heart, by the dispersion in a dreamless peace of all my dead desires.

Suddenly a sight noise startled me. One might have called it the contact scarcely sensible of some delicate object with a feebly resisting surface. The sound was rhythmical, too, at equal intervals, suggesting the idea of a bell infinitely distant among the clouds.

The noise continued hardly audible, yet seeming to gently importune me. I arose and looked out of the window.

Fancy my surprise!

The cathedral, which on entering I had placed near the door in a narrow path, like a church at the end of an avenue—the cathedral, whose candle end inside had long been extinguished—now radiated illumination through all its tiny red windows, and as I leaned forward to examine more closely I perceived that the inclination of an adjacent woodbine caused the steeple to be capped by an oscillating bellflower in which a bee performed the office of clapper or ringer. What was going on, then, in my garden beneath the mystic light of the moon?

I softly stepped over the window sill and knelt in the shade of an acacia. In the wall of the little church, just behind the choir, was a crevice, through which I now peeped. More than a hundred fireflies, attached either to the shafts of the columns or perched before the altar in lieu of candles, filled the edifice with light, and in the top of the steeple the industrious bee tolled his bell in the woodbine, as if calling the devout to some important ceremony.

A constantly increasing and innumerable throng of insects was entering the portals. Crickets and grasshoppers from the fields jostled each other eagerly in the van; a ladybug, to avoid being pushed in the crowd, was posted on the wing of a dragon fly; tiny insects vested in black and white, presumably the clergy, followed a gorgeous cochineal in purple. The whole seemed a strange confusion of murmurings from countless creeping things of every color.

When a length the entire company had taken their places in proper order, a large fly flew up to the organ loft and presently a humming sort of music, joyous, yet religious, fairly filled the little basilica so brightly illuminated by the fireflies.

A ceremony, indeed, of some sort was on the point of commencing.

When I beheld two minute creatures proceed toward the choir, the one with confident air beating its wings victoriously, the other hesitating and timid, I supposed there was a wedding afoot.

And of this I was sure when I saw at the high altar a magnificent beetle with green and gold chasuble, assisted by two lesser bugs as acolytes, approach the bridal party with gesture seemingly of benediction.

My eyes glued the crevice; I lost not a single detail of the august ceremony. With eager curiosity I watched the crowd as it gradually dispersed, while the fireflies extinguished their lights one by one. Then noiselessly I turned to trace on the moonlit path the course of the newly wedded couple after extricating themselves from the tumultuous throng.

Where would they go? Would they fly away for their honeymoon toward some distant nuptial flower, under a warmer azure, beneath more ardent stars? Or would they content themselves with the first convenient corolla invitingly open under the discreet curtain of a leaf?

"Wherever fancy leads you, oh, gentle bride and bridegroom, may the god of insects ephemeral and flowers quickly fading to you be kind! May you have much happiness in the few hours of your brief springtime!

"Never may the sabot of a peasant or the slipper of a woman who perchance seeks repose under a tree cause you fear as you wing your flight so close one to the other, over moss clad bank, from bush to bush! May the dewdrops that you sip together be ever perfumed to your taste! May the chalice proffered never refuse an odorous lodging! And if you should fall into the clutches of some cruel child may it be the same little hand that seizes you both so that you may suffer and die together!"

While I was breathing these heartfelt wishes for their happiness the two insects had not flown away; they had climbed up the length of a Bengal rose bush, the topmost rose of which surmounted the ledge of my window, and I saw them disappear inside the flower, whose petals, half gone, closed softly over the tender pair.

Not for one instant would I have thought of returning to my room by the window as I had left—a rustling of the leaves would have disturbed the rapt lovers in their first intimacy. I started, therefore, toward the door, where I happened to observe on the stone ledge another bug, which I had not perceived before and who without doubt had followed the others.

What was its business here? Why had it come? Was it a relative of the bride or—who knows—a rival of the bridegroom?

Many a man has suffered under the windows of a nuptial chamber, and among insects, perhaps, as with us, it is the misfortune of some that becomes the happiness of others.

The poor little creature remained motionless, close by the rosebush. I touched it with the end of my finger very gently. It stirred not. Alas! I knew, then, that it was dead.—Translated From the French For Commercial Advertiser.

"What's In a Name?"

The southern part of New Zealand has been colonized in the main by Scots and their descendants, and, as a result of Caledonian clannishness, a man without a Scotch sounding name has no chance of getting a contract from the municipal councils there.

At a meeting of one of these bodies it was announced from the chair that Sandy McPherson was the successful seeker of a contract, and he was requested to come forward and enter into the necessary bonds for its due fulfillment.

In response to the invitation an almond eyed, pig tailed, bland and smiling heathen Chinee rose from the rear of the hall and stood before the speechless councilors with the brief exclamation:

"Me Sandy McPherson!"

After a few moments of silent agony the meeting adjourned in confusion.

How to Skin an Eel.

When hooked, an eel will tie a line into many thousand intricate knots without any apparent difficulty. He is slippery and should be seized near the middle, with the middle finger over, the rest under his body. In this position he can only wind himself around your wrist and cover your sleeve with slime. Said slime often, if dried, is nearly as adhesive as the skin.

If skinned before his demise, he is as lively as ever, and half cooked four inch pieces will wriggle freely.

To remove the eel's outer garment grasp firmly with a mittened hand, cut through the back of the neck till the spinal column is broken, then through to the skin in front, seize the exposed meat with a bit of paper to prevent slipping and steadily pull the hide toward the tail, turning it wrong side out.

CONVERTED HANNA.

Editor Cowles Taught Him a Lesson In Pocket Picking.

Edwin Cowles, long editor of the Cleveland Leader, numbered among his accomplishments that of pocket picking. Of course he picked pockets as an amateur only, but it is doubtful whether there ever was a professional who could play the light fingered game more skillfully than the able editor did occasionally for fun.

It was during the administration of a mayor who had been elected as a protege of M. A. Hanna, who was then starting in Cleveland upon the political career which gave him national prominence, that the Leader began a crusade against vice. Articles were published daily in which it was asserted that the city was full of thieves, gamblers and other crooks, and the mayor was taken severely to task for not having them driven away. Hanna, being the power behind the municipal throne, came in for censure in an indirect way, and, meeting Cowles in the street one day, he expostulated with him concerning the Leader's style of warfare.

"Look here, Cowles," he said, "what's the use of all this racket? You're making a mountain out of a molehill. There are no more crooks in town than there have been right along, and it would be foolish to expect any mayor to drive all the lawbreakers out, no matter how hard he tried or how good his intentions might be."

Cowles insisted that his paper was right, and he expressed the belief that there were then more pickpockets in Cleveland than had ever before infested that city.

"Pickpockets!" snorted Hanna. "I don't believe there's a pickpocket in the town. And, anyway, I have no sympathy for anybody whose pockets are picked. No one but a jay could ever be robbed in that way."

"You don't know," said Cowles, "how skillful some of these light fingered fellows become. It would be possible for one of them to go through your pockets while talking to you as I am now."

Hanna laughed derisively and said any pickpocket that ever got a hand in his clothes without being caught at it was welcome to anything he could extract.

As they were parting Cowles turned to ask what time it was, and Hanna felt for his watch.

It was gone.

"That's strange," he said. "I guess I must have forgotten when I dressed this morning to put it in my pocket."

"Speaking of forgetting things," Cowles answered, "I forgot my wallet when I left home. Could you lend me $10?"

Hanna felt for his money, but found none. He put his hands into one empty pocket after another and was beginning to look sheepish when Cowles handed him back his watch, his money, his keys and a bundle of letters.

"Very well, Cowles," said the future senator; "I'll see what can be done about driving the pickpockets away."—Chicago Record-Herald.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A sign of a happy marriage: When a man says his wife spoils him.

Did you ever think how much trouble was caused in this world by blabbing?

It sometimes happens that in getting out of a rut a man finds himself in a hole.

A family row is as bad as a church row, but the limit is reached when they are mixed up.

This is as true as gospel: If you make a visit longer than a couple of days, your left ear will burn after you go home.

One of the great wonders to a man is the number of interruptions a woman can endure while eating a meal without noticing it.

When a crime is committed, suspicion turns quicker to those who once loved the victim than to those who once hated him.—Atchison Globe.

Treating Wrong Disease.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages this practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse, by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

The Trojans of the West.

The shadow of calamity which has fallen upon this part of our country since the earthquake and fire made not a fitting atmosphere for a holiday in San Francisco. The city, which was formerly so quick to array itself for every gala day, and was more resplendent than all others when in holiday attire, stood stripped and sorry the Fourth. The spirit, however, which has made this nation what she is, will give new life to the city and ultimate success—greater and broader than she has ever yet experienced. San Franciscans have been buoyed up by encouragement and sympathy from every part of the nation. There was a genuine expression of condolence from the American people to the sufferers in the great city of the West. It is a national trait this sympathetic strata in the make-up. There is no sectional antagonism now. In hours of trial the North and South aid as do the East and West. As Disraeli put it: "Patriotism depends as much on mutual suffering as in mutual success. And it is by that experience of all fortunes and all feelings that a great national character is created." We all help each other in adversity at home, and are as one when trouble comes from the outside.

The grit of San Franciscans is truly marvelous. It is the grit of the American people intensified by the spirit of the West. There is something peculiar about the conditions as we find it in the stricken city, for it is not grim grit, but a cheerful optimistic determination not to be downed. To those on the outside it may seem like the whistle through the graveyard, but to those who brush against it every day there is apparent the serious actuality—a downright effort and pronounced confidence. It is a healthy effort, too, and one bound to win out, for while men sweat all day and untangle their affairs from the knotty problems which confront them, at night they laugh and enjoy themselves and throng to shows and get the relaxation which is necessary when one works for results and would not break down in the midst of their striving. San Franciscans know the golden mean, but they are the Trojans of Americans and will build a greater city than ever rose in the Golden West.

The defeat of the High School bond proposition last Saturday can be attributed to several causes, the principal one being the condemnation of the old building and the substitution of a new $7000 edifice. Many voted against the proposition on this account. These claim that the old High School building should not have been condemned. That it is as good as it ever was from the foundation up to the second story. That the damaged portion can be restored and made earthquake proof at a cost of $3000 or $4000. That if this is done the district will then own a building worth at least $15,000. Whether this be a fact or not it might be well to look into the matter and see just what there is in these claims set up by a considerable number of our level-headed farmers who opposed the bond proposition to raise $7,000 for a new building. In any event we trust the High School Trustees will again submit the proposition to the voters and we are quite sure it will carry, as this is no time to levy a direct tax on our farmers, which the Trustees have the power to do. This would mean taxation with a vengeance. The bond way is the far better way of housing our High School. In fact it is the only way from a sound-sense business standpoint.

Congressman McKinlay is back from Washington, where in a few short months he has won laurels and made a national name for himself. A natural born orator, keen and bright in intellect, an indefatigable worker and of fine personality it is no wonder that he has forged ahead and won recognition among the foremost men at the nation's capital. By reason of his influence with the administration he has accomplished more for his district than has ever before been accomplished by any one of his predecessors. This is his first term in Congress and his influence with the administration at the present time is only a forerunner of what that influence will mean for the Second Congressional District if he be given a second term by a constituency whom he has served in the Fifty-ninth Congress so faithfully and so well.

Petaluma is still agitating a division of the county. The taxpayers, however, will down such a proposition as they have everything to lose and nothing to gain by setting up two sets of governments for them to support when one is answering all the requirements just as well. The only thing to be gained by a division is that it will make Petaluma a county seat. Wonder if the people over that way would favor division with Sonoma, for instance, as the seat of government? We doubt it very much. Santa Rosa would be good enough for them in that event. Better drop the agitation, as the whole business at this time, to use a pet phrase of the lawyers, is irrelevant, immaterial and incompetent.

Congressman Gillett has landed into the Gubernatorial contest with both feet and is proclaiming himself from the housetops of Alameda County as in the fight to stay. Governor Pardee, who wants to serve another term, is wisely sawing wood and does not seem to be in the least disturbed by the aspirations of the genial Congressman and some half dozen other ambitious statesmen who have set their hearts on the Gubernatorial chair with the chances more than even that they will never set anything else on it.

One of the reasons for his opposition given by an over-zealous worker against the High School bonds at last Saturday's election was, to use his own expression, "Do you suppose I would trust these High School Trustees to handle $7,000 of the people's money—not much." We have no patience with such a man, who being dishonest himself, must necessarily cry "stop thief," to cover up his own footsteps.

The rehashing of the Thaw murder case in the big dailies makes one weary. It is a chestnut that deserves a roast.

Mayor Schmitz of stricken San Francisco is a man of action and we now doff our hat to him as a man in whom we had little confidence a few short months ago. He has made good, however, this week and kicked his grafting Police Commission out of office. It is now up to him to ferret out the grafters on the Board of Public Works and have them inspected and give the chimneys a rest.

Only 82 Years Old.

"I am only 82 years old and don't expect even when I get to be real old to feel that way as long as I can get Electric Bitters," says Mrs. E. H. Brunson, of Dublin, Ga. Surely there's nothing else that keeps the old as young and makes the weak as strong as this grand tonic medicine. Dyspepsia, torpid liver, inflamed kidneys or chronic constipation are unknown after taking Electric Bitters a reasonable time. Guaranteed by S. L. Simmons, druggist. Price 50c.

Twenty Year Battle.

"I was a loser in a twenty year battle with chronic piles and malignant sores, until I tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve; which turned the tide, by curing both, till not a trace remains," writes A. M. Bruce of Farmville, V. Best for old Ulcers, Cuts, Burns and Wounds. 25c at L. S. Simmons', druggist.

A Tragic Finish.

A watchman's neglect permitted a leak in the great North Sea dyke, which a child's finger could have stopped, to become a ruinous break, devastating an entire province in Holland. In like manner Kenneth McIver, of Vanceboro, Me., permitted a little cold to go unnoticed until a tragic finish was only averted by Dr. King's New Discovery. He writes: "Three doctors gave me up to die of lung inflammation, caused by a neglected cold; but Dr. King's New Discovery saved my life." Guaranteed best cough and cold cure, at L. S. Simmons' drug store. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Flood at Reclamation.

The lower part of the Rose ranch at Reclamation is still under water and thousands of tons of cut hay has been ruined. A big portion of the ranch is an inland sea dotted every where with little islands of hay stacks. The inundation was caused by the breaking of one of the floodgates which caused a big inrush from the waters of Petaluma Creek.

THE HIGH SCHOOL BONDS DEFEATED.

The Vote Stood 116 for and 69 Against the Proposition.

The result of the High School bond election held here last Saturday was a keen disappointment to the advocates of the bonding proposition, as it was defeated by a vote of 69 against and 116 for, thus lacking the necessary two-thirds to carry.

The vote was a very light one and little interest was taken in the election, if we except one or two parties, both for and against, who forced themselves into the contest to make a grandstand play and pose as leaders of public opinion. These parties, however, did more harm than good, and would have helped their particular cause along far better had they remained at home.

Several reasons contributed to the defeat of the bonds, the principal ones being lack of interest in the election by the friends and patrons of the school and the substitution of a new $7000 building for the old one, which many claim can be repaired for $3000 or $4000, an outlay which would make the building worth at least $15,000.

In Memoriam.

For the first time in the history of The Woman's Improvement Club of Glen Ellen we are called upon to chronicle the passing of one of our members—Mrs. Elizabeth McLean, who though past the meridian of life, being in her 67 year, was still an active woman; and little did we dream on Wednesday, July 4th, when she attended our celebration brimming over with life and animation that the grim angel of death would so soon claim her for his own. Mrs. McLean, who had a cottage here, where she came every summer, was well liked and greatly respected in this community. While singularly frank and outspoken, she was ever the champion of truth and justice, and had always the courage of her convictions. The saddest feature of her sudden demise was that she passed away in the silent watches of the night unattended and alone. We can only hope that her suffering was not prolonged, and that she passed peacefully and without realizing the presence of the grim specter beckoning her on to that lonely shore from which there is no return.

It is therefore resolved that as a club we mourn her loss and tender to her bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy.

The Woman's Improvement Club.

Dr. Nichols Has Left for Minnesota.

Dr. G. C. Nichols left for Minnesota last Thursday and his stay will be indefinite. The doctor, who has been enjoying a lucrative practice in this valley the past few months, received a summons one day this week to his mother's bedside in Minnesota, who is to have a capital operation performed on her. In order to be present and assist in the operation the doctor's departure has necessarily been a hasty one. Should the operation prove successful he will remain and nurse his mother back to health, and it may be months before he returns. The doctor during his brief residence here has made many friends, who will exceedingly regret his leave-taking.

Charley Stornetta, the popular young dairyman, and Miss Mary Crevelli went to Petaluma Thursday, thence to Santa Rosa, via the electric cars, and got the little paper that makes you man and wife. NOLAN CASE SET FOR NEXT TUESDAY, County Board of Education Will Take the Evidence in the Sensational Case.

The Nolan case is at last to be disposed of, much to the relief of a long-suffering community. District Attorney Pond and Clarence F. Lea will prosecute, while attorneys Barham and Cowen will appear for the defense.

The county board will hear all the testimony, make its recommendations and forward the same to the State Board for final action.

A large number of witnesses will be called upon to give testimony in the case pro and con.

The accused and accuser have their friends in the valley who will take a keen interest in the outcome of this celebrated case.

SANTA ROSA ITEMS

At the present time there are 22 prisoners in the county jail. This is a little above the average number for this time of the year.

At the beginning of July there were 104 patients at the county hospital and farm, Dr. Bogle, the county physician, stated on Monday.

Angelo Bacci, the Italian section hand who was terribly injured by falling under the wheels of a fast moving hand car, is in a critical condition.

A fire which broke out in Santa Rosa at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon destroyed a warehouse and other buildings on First street, which burned property valued at several thousand dollars. The insurance on same is $3700.

A meeting of the Santa Rosa Rochedale Association was held on Thursday morning, and it was decided to disincorporate. It will be remembered that the company's stock and store on Third street were destroyed by fire.

Rod M. Saul, a Santa Rosa newspaper man, says he was held-up, robbed and beaten by thugs at an early hour Tuesday morning in San Francisco. He was treated at the hospital for injuries to his head caused by some blunt instrument in the hands of the hold-up men.

The Great Mystifier at Union Hall.

Prof. Hancock's vaudeville show, which held forth in Union Hall last night to a crowded house will repeat the performance this (Saturday) evening with a variation in the program. The professor is a past-master in the art of sleight-of-hand, hypnotism and mind-reading, and will expose every trick shown. He has traveled all over the Old World and has been greeted every where with crowded houses. He lost every thing in the big fire in San Francisco and had to send East for new stage settings. In the meantime he is using those made by himself, which are quite a novelty in themselves. The admission to the show is 25 cents for adults, children 15 cents. The doors will be open at 8 o'clock.

Yosemites Win.

The Yosemites of San Francisco defeated the Sonoma nine in a match game of baseball on the City Hotel grounds last Sunday by a score of 18 to 1. The local team will try conclusions to-morrow with the Oak Runs of San Francisco, when they expect to make a better showing.

POETS IN DREAMLAND

WORK DONE OR IMAGINED WHILE WRAPPED IN SLUMBER.

Stories of Sublime Verse That Was Born During Sleep Only to Die In the Waking of the Author—The Gem That Coleridge Lost.

In Sir Mountstuart Duff's "Notes From a Diary" it is related that the late Lord Lytton, when viceroy of India, had repeated to his guests on one occasion a poem which he professed to have composed when asleep:

There are boating and sailing
And fishing for grayling
Where the blue waves roll nightly on deep Galilee.
But sweeter the places
Where aldermen's braces
Are sold for boot laces in bonnie Dundee.

The diarist ventured to doubt whether the viceroy was not trying to impose on the credulity of his friends, a suspicion which will be shared by most readers.

But, whether these lines were dreamed or not, there can be no doubt that one of the most curious sections of the whole subject of dream work is that which relates to the comparative value of work done or imagined in sleep. No experience is more general than the waking from a particularly vivid dream only to find that in the very process of waking the whole vision, apparently so real and strong for a brief moment, vanishes beyond recall. This dissolving touch of psychical or dream life is like the contact of the air with a long entombed, well preserved human body suddenly exposed to the light of day. While the tomb openers gaze upon the features so strangely preserved from a long past day the touch of the air does its work, and the relic of humanity crumbles to dust.

A strange point about the difficulty in keeping in mental grip of a dream is that, although no detail can be remembered, an impression remains which in cases that have been tested has often turned out to be quite incorrect. It is related by Mickle, the Scottish poet, best known as the translator of the Portuguese epic, the "Lusiad" of Camoens, that he always regretted he could not remember the poetry which he composed in his sleep. It was, he said, so infinitely superior to anything he could produce in his waking hours. One morning on waking he was lamenting, as he had so often done before, that he should be conscious of having composed such sublime poetry and yet be unable to recall a word of it. "What!" said his wife, who happened to be awake. "Were you writing poetry?" "Yes," he replied, "and such poetry that I would give the world to remember it." "Well, then," said she, "I did luckily hear the last lines, and I am sure I remembered them exactly. They were:

"By heaven, I'll wreak my woes
Upon the cowslip and the pale primrose!"

Mr. Mickle was probably cured of his habit of lamentation.

The late Lewis Carroll noted in his "Diary" that he once heard Tennyson relate that he had often dreamed long passages of poetry and believed them to be good at the time, but could never remember any of them on waking except four lines which he dreamed at ten years old, and these were the moving verses:

May a cock sparrow
Write to a barrow?
I hope you'll excuse
My infantile muse.

This, as the diarist remarks, as an unpublished fragment of the late laureate, "may be thought interesting, but not affording much promise of his after powers." On the same occasion Tennyson told his hearers that he once dreamed an enormously long poem about fairies, which began with very long lines that gradually got shorter and ended with fifty or sixty lines of two syllabies each!

On the other hand, poets have occasionally found their dreams of service. Southey in a letter to his brother says, "I forgot my dreams and have no Daniel to help out my recollection, and if by chance I do remember them unless they are instantly written down the impression passes away almost as lightly as the dream itself." But he goes on to say that one or two of his dreams were noted at the time and were afterward incorporated in scenes of his now little read poem, "The Curse of Kehama." And then, of course, there is the familiar story of Coleridge falling asleep one summer afternoon in a quiet farmhouse after reading about the Khan Kublai in Purchas' "Pilgrimes," composing several hundred lines in the course of a three hours' sleep, waking, and at once beginning to write them down, only to be interrupted at the fifty-fourth line by a visitor—that "person from Porlock" whose memory is execrated by all lovers of poetry—with the result that on returning to his desk an hour later the poet found that the rest of his dream verse had faded from his memory. "Kubla Khan" remains a melodious fragment, but if the "person from Porlock" had only lost his way or had come to grief sufficient to cause a delay of an hour or two we might have had a completely beautiful poem.—London Globe.

The Kind Mother Used.

The bride was out marketing for the first time. She had ordered a generous number of eatables, and the next on her list was eggs. "I shall want a dozen," she said.

"Will you have case eggs?" asked the clerk.

"Really, I don't know," answered the girl, wrinkling her pretty forehead. "If I recollect, mother always used hens' eggs."—New York Press.

Whose Key Unlocked the Drawer?

Here is a true story told by a doctor This doctor had a patient, a brother physician, who was ill of a disease no one has ever cured yet. The sick man realized that his case was hopeless and he knew, too, that before he died he would go through horrible convulsions. He begged his friend to kill him in order to spare his wife the sight of anything so unforgettably hideous, and the physician, bound by his code of ethics, refused. The sick man begged his wife to let him have his revolver, but she refused. The physician locked the drawer of the bureau in which it lay and gave the wife the key. Two days later the sick man shot himself, and the revolver he used was his own. He had unlocked the drawer.

"We found the key in it," said the doctor. "It was not the one I had given to the wife. I took it, and when I had a chance I went quietly into the room occupied by the man's mother. The key exactly fitted the lock of her bureau. That's all I know, except that the mother came out of the house with her bonnet and cloak on two minutes before her son shot himself."—Washington Post.

To Scrape an Acquaintance.

"To scrape an acquaintance" was originated by the Emperor Hadrian. Once when visiting the public bath he found an old veteran scraping himself with a piece of broken crockery in lieu of an iron or copper scraper. Hadrian gave him a sum of money to provide the necessary materials for a bath and on his next visit to the institution found it full of veterans scraping themselves with potsherds. "Scrape away, gentlemen, but you shall not scrape an acquaintance with me," was Hadrian's comment as he went out.

THE SMILE

That won't come off, appears on baby's face after one bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge, the great worm medicine. Why not keep that smile on baby's face. If you keep this medicine on hand, you will never see anything else but smiles on his face. Mr. S—, Blackwell, Okla., writes: "My baby was peevish and fretful. Would not eat and I feared he would die. I used a bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and he has not had a sick day since. Sold at Simmons' Drug Store.

Church Built of Bulrushes.

The first place of worship in Western Australia was unique in two respects—the materials of which it was built and also the several purposes to which it was devoted. This remarkable building was made at Perth by soldiers shortly after their first arrival in 1829 and was composed almost entirely of bulrushes. In addition to its use on Sundays for divine worship, it occasionally served as an amateur theater during the week and during the whole time as a barracks.

MODEST CLAIMS OFTEN CARRY THE MOST CONVICTION.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise, instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. What they do claim is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Desperate.

Aunt Ruth—'Tis sad to grow old Her Niece—How much would you give to be as young as I? Aunt Ruth—I would almost submit to being as foolish.

CURED A COMRADE OF CHOLERA MORBUS AND SAVED HIS LIFE.

"While returning from the Grand Army Encampment at Washington City, a comrade from Elgin, Ill., was taken with cholera morbus and was in a critical condision," says Mr. J. F. Houghland, of Eldon, Iowa. "I gave him Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and believe saved his life. I have been engaged for ten years in immigration work and conducted many parties to the south and west. I always carry this remedy and have used it successfully on many occasions. No person traveling or at home should be without this remedy." For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Uncomfort, tle.

"She didn't speak to her husband for six months."

"My, it must have been very uncomfortable!"

"Yes—for her."

He who can suppress a moment's anger may by so doing prevent a day of sorrow for himself and another.—Success Magazine.

BOWEL COMPLAINT IN CHILDREN.

During the summer months children are subject to disorders of the bowels which should receive careful attention as soon as the first unnatural looseness of the bowels appears. The best medicine in use for bowel complaint in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as it promptly controls any unnatural looseness of the bowels, whether it be in a child or an adult. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Really a Human Being.

The story is told in China that years ago a missionary made his appearance upon a platform there and that the native orator who introduced him closed with these words: "When I have finished a gentleman from the west is going to address you. He is not a foreign demon. His appearance and his clothing may seem strange to you, but look carefully at him. He has two arms and two legs, two ears and two eyes, a nose (though a long one!) and a mouth; and I assure you his teeth are made of bone, just like yours. He is really a human being, and I hope you will regard him as such."

If your stomach troubles you do not conclude that there is no cure, for a great many have been permanently cured by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Get a free sample at Simmons' Drug Store and give them a trial. They also cure constipation and billiousness.

Stay With It.

The first day mother sent me to school I went home at recess, thinking school was out. As I have grown older I find that a whole lot of people did the same thing, and the sad part of the affair is that too many of us never went back. In life be careful that you don't go home at recess. If you start to learn a trade or profession, stay by it and master it. Don't chase away at recess. If you have a business, attend to it. Don't go home at recess. This going home at recess has sent many a business man into bankruptcy. It has caused mothers' tears to flow and mother hearts to ache. It has made crusty old bachelors and sour old maids. It has filled worlds with ignorance and made barren deserts of fertile plains. Going home at recess means that you have fallen asleep at the switch and your train has plunged into the ditch. Always stay until school is out.—Osborne County (Kan.) Farmer.

Stock in a Big Mail Order House

Six per Cent Earnings Guaranteed

And Enables You to Buy Anything for Home, Yourself or Family, at Same Price Your Local Dealer Pays

Price of Stock Will soon Be Advanced

Act Quickly

Look out for that "rainy day!"

It comes sooner or later for so many—we can't tell to-day who may want on the morrow.

Prepare now while you are able for any misfortune that may overtake you. Don't run any risks.

Here is something that will help you provide for the rainy day—an investment that carries with it unusual benefits and proves its value from the minute you buy the stock.

Smith's Cash Store is well and favorably known all over the West. Its reputation is of the best and in volume of business it is making tremendous strides forward every year. Some five years ago the stock was selling for $5.00 a share. Today the price is $10.00 a share. These figures demonstrate what a thriving institution is this biggest Mail Order House on the Pacific Coast.

Each share of stock is guaranteed to earn 6 per cent a year. But the greatest benefit is derived by the stockholder from the discounts given to the holders of five or more shares of stock. You can buy anything to eat, use or wear at the same price the goods would cost your local dealers. We call them "Owner's Prices."

Suppose you buy goods that altogether cost $50 at our wholesale rate. If you are a stockholder you get a discount amounting to $2.50, and your bill is only $47.50. The saving you will make in one year in addition to the earnings will in all probability more than cover the investment.

Year after year you will be effecting big savings. But should hard times knock at your door—and you must not be too sure that something of that sort will not happen—think what it will mean to you to be able to buy everything at cost prices. It might be the very thing that would help you to survive the period of distress.

We are increasing the amount of our capital stock. We are telling you about the stock because we think you ought to invest for your own sake. You couldn't buy stock in any other concern that would pay you so well.

It will not be long before the price of the stock is advanced. You know that means there are not many days remaining in which you can take advantage of this great offer.

For your convenience we are printing a coupon which you ought to fill out—it does not obligate you in any way. Send it at once.
